GERMAN RETREAT ON STALINGRAD ROAD

DRIVE INTO CAUCASUS SLOWED

SOUTH-WEST of Stalingrad the Germans have been forced to retreat, says Reuter, adding that the Soviet troops followed up this advantage without pause and recaptured an important strategic point.

North-east of Stalingrad, where the Germans reached the west bank of the river, the Russians are resisting an immense effort by masses of tanks and infantry, though Berlin claims the capture of 12,000 Russian prisoners and the destruction or capture in two days of over 250 guns and 47 tanks.

Vichy reports that German infantry are "mopping-up" in the Kletskaya-Kalachino-Chir River triangle while German sappers throw pontoons across the Don, and that other German units are now within 125 miles of Astrakhan, at the mouth of the Volga.

The German drives for Novorossisk, Tuapse and Anapa, and towards Grozny, are making slower progress against stiffening Russian resistance.

STRATEGIC POINT CAPTURED

MOSCOW, Tuesday. — Reuter's Correspondent here states: "A series of fierce Soviet attacks south-west of Stalingrad have forced the Germans to retreat some distance. Marshal Timoshenko's men are following up their advantage without a pause, and have now recaptured an important strategic point. North-west of Stalingrad the Russians have repelled all enemy attacks south-east of Kletskaya, and are also passing to the offensive in some sectors.

GERMANS RETIRE

"The Germans were forced back at several points. When night finally brought a lull they hastily tried to dig themselves in and throw up pill-boxes and earthworks. Warned of this, the Soviet forces attacked again and drove the Germans out of their new positions. They captured an important point, and generally improved their positions. A battalion of Rumanian infantry, which the Germans threw in as a last resort, was completely routed and driven from a strategic village, losing many prisoners and a quantity of material."

To the north-west of Voronezh Russian troops have broken through the defences of a well-fortified enemy stronghold, and are now in possession of the first line of German trenches. A violent battle is still raging.—(Reuter.)

LONDON, Tuesday. — To-day's German communiqué reported: "In the Caucasus area the attack by German and Allied troops is being successfully continued in face of stubborn enemy resistance, difficult terrain and tropical heat.

"In the ports of the Black Sea coast 12 coastal vessels were sunk by bomb hits, and a fairly large tanker and eight munition transports badly damaged.

"In the north-eastern loop of the great Don bend more than 12,800 prisoners were taken, according to reports so far received, in the offensive battles during the period between August 15 and 17, and 47 tanks and 252 guns were captured or destroyed. Mopping-up operations in the battle area are continuing.

"East of Vyasma several enemy attacks were repulsed, partly in a counter-attack. In the area of Rzhev the enemy again attacked at various points with strong infantry and tank forces. All attacks were repulsed.

"Since July 30 a total of 1,068 tanks have been destroyed in hard defensive battles, in exemplary co-operation with units of the Luftwaffe. In the northern sector of the front several local enemy attacks failed. The Finnish Air Force shot down 11 enemy 'planes."

SOVIET ADVANCE

MOSCOW, Tuesday Night.—Russian troops have launched heavy attacks on the Leningrad front. Under cover of heavy artillery fire, Soviet infantry advanced. Germans were pressed back near a railway line, where fierce fighting is going on.

In the Kletskaya area in the Don bend, Soviet tank destroyers have smashed 21 German tanks. A strong enemy parachute detachment, which landed under cover of artillery and aircraft, was wiped out completely. Soviet artillery beat off repeated enemy attacks north-east of Kotelnikovo.—(Reuter.)

LONDON, Tuesday.—German losses on the Russian front during the last three months—from May 15 to August 15—were 1,250,000 officers and men, of whom 480,000 were killed, the Soviet Information Bureau stated to-night. The Germans also lost 3,390 tanks, 4,000 guns, and 4,000 'planes. Soviet losses for the same period were:—506,000 men killed, wounded, or missing; 2,240 tanks, 5,162 guns, and 2,198 aircraft. The announcement admits the loss of vast territories of rich industrial value in the Kuban and Don areas, but says that the greater part of the

ITALIAN CRUISER'S BOWS BLOWN OFF

AXIS SUPPLIES SUNK

A BRITISH Admiralty communiqué last night stated: "Air reconnaissance has shown that one of the two Italian cruisers hit with torpedoes by the submarine under the command of Lieut. A. C. G. Mars, R.N., during the Malta convoy operations last week, has 60 feet of her bows missing.

"Our submarines continue to do considerable execution among the enemy's sea borne supplies, both in the Mediterranean and off the coast of Norway. Off the coast of Norway one of our submarines, under the command of Lieut. C. E. Oxborrow, D.S.C., R.N., attacked an enemy north-bound convoy consisting of three supply ships, escorted by an armed trawler. One large and one medium-sized supply ship of this convoy were hit by torpedoes. It is considered that both these ships sank, since only one supply ship and the armed trawler were visible shortly afterwards.

"In the Mediterranean, a submarine, commanded by Lieut. R. L. Alexander, R.N., has carried out a successful attack on an escorted convoy consisting of three supply ships. One of the supply ships, a large vessel, was sunk, and another large ship was probably hit. A submarine, commanded by Lieut. M. B. St. John, R.N., has attacked and almost certainly sunk an enemy supply ship which was escorted by three destroyers.

"A large south-bound supply ship has been torpedoed by a submarine under the command of Lieut. L. W. A. Bennington, D.S.C., R.N. This ship was left sinking."

populations and all the equipment and factories were either evacuated or destroyed.

The announcement denies the figures issued by Berlin on August 12, which claimed 1,044,241 prisoners.—(Reuter.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Tuesday.—To-night's Soviet communiqué states:—"During August 18 our troops fought the enemy in the areas south-east of Kletskaya, north-east of Kotelnikovo, as well as in the areas of Pistigorsk and Krasnodar." The communiqué states that the Germans are pushing forward towards Stalingrad. In the South they have reached the region of Piatigorsk.—(Reuter.)

REPRIEVE APPEAL

CABLE TO MR. ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt has been asked, in a cable from Dublin, to intervene to prevent the execution of the six young Belfast men sentenced to death following the shooting of Constable Patrick Murphy on Easter Sunday.

The cable, sent by Mr. Sean MacBride, Chairman of the Reprieve Committee, Mansion House, Dublin, reads: "Reprieve Committee, representative of all sections of Irish public opinion, urges that you intervene to prevent the execution of six young Irishmen condemned to death in Belfast. The execution of any of these men would be an outrage on justice and an affront to the Irish race at home and abroad."

THE TAOISEACH

The Government Information Bureau stated last night that the Taoiseach had received yesterday evening a deputation, consisting of the Lord Mayor of Dublin (Ald. P. Doyle, T.D.), Councillor Mrs. Kathleen Clarke and Councillor James Larkin.

The deputation told him that they came from the Reprieve Committee, representing all sections of the people, who were deeply disturbed, to urge that everything possible should be done to secure the reprieve of the six men under sentence of death in Belfast. They detailed the grounds for reprieve and the special circumstances surrounding the case.

A representative meeting in the Town Hall, Kilkenny, presided over by the Mayor (Ald. Crotty), passed a resolution, on the motion of Ald. Magennis, seconded by Ald. McSweeney, appealing to the Northern Ireland Government against the execution.

APPLES FOR ASKING

A bumper crop and the wind have combined to make the disposal of apples at the moment something of a problem for growers in some country districts. High winds have meant a large proportion of windfall apples, and the difficulty of getting containers and transport are so great in some cases that anybody who can take these apples off the growers' hands can have them for nothing.

The impossibility of getting extra sugar for jam-making means that there is a much slower demand for the fruit than in normal years, which also tends to leave the grower with the windfalls on his hands. The crop generally is so large this year, following a bad year in 1941, that the proportion of windfalls has been very large. Such apples are not suitable for marketing under the Government's scheme, which requires graded, unbruised, ripe fruit, which will keep well. Jam manufacturers will not be able to take up more of the apple crop this year than last year, and, because of the heavy crop, their proportion of the whole will be substantially smaller than in 1941. A large proportion of the crop is usually taken up by the cider manufacturers, and it is probable that the amount bought by these this year will be bigger than ever.

MUSSEL FARMING IN KERRY

MORE than a hundred million mussels have been transplanted in Dingle Bay within the last month in the biggest mussel-transplanting operations ever known in Ireland. These operations mark another stage in the building up of the large, modern mussel industry undertaken by Irish Sea Fisheries, Ltd., when they established a mussel purification station at Cromane, near Killorglin, Co. Kerry, about three years ago.

TRANSPLANTING

Transplanting operations consist of taking up young mussels from parts of the shore where they are uncovered at low tide, and where they are growing so thickly that many of them would not come to maturity. These young mussels are shovelled into boats and taken out into the bay and systematically dumped on to beds which, during the season, have shown signs of being worked out.

In other years not more than 33 boats were employed in transplanting, and the maximum number of loads taken was about 600. This year 48 boats were employed for a period of a month, and the number of loads was over 900. The young mussels thus transplanted will be ready for dredging for food purposes in 1943. Prior to the opening of the purification station at Cromane the mussel industry had seemed to be a dying one. As more and more English cities insisted on a certificate of purification accompanying all mussels sent to their markets, so the demand for the old unpurified mussels had fallen off. Fewer fishermen were working the beds, and many of the beds were becoming silted over for the want of dredging.

WORK AND PAYMENTS

In the first full year of the working of the station it put on the market 7,000 cwt. of mussels. Last season the quantity was 15,000 cwt. For this payments amounting to over £4,000 were made to about 50 local fishing families, and another £4,000 was paid to Irish freight undertakings.

Mr. Noel Wilmot, manager of the station, yesterday, told an Irish Times reporter that the work of purification and transplanting had to go hand-in-hand. The replanting operations they had done this year would guarantee a good supply of mussels for the future. It might happen eventually that they could get all the beds so well stocked that the supply would be continued by natural methods, making further transplanting work unnecessary.

his mother in Lismore, Mrs. Astaire told an Irish Times reporter last night.

"If he comes he will almost certainly come unexpectedly—you know what transport is these days," she said. "He will probably fly, and, although I have no definite news myself, I feel sure that I will get word as soon as he arrives. I think he would like to come, and I'm excited at the prospect of seeing him again—he hasn't been here for three years, remember."

CAST YOUR VOTE EARLY TO-DAY

111 FOR 35 SEATS

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

HAVE I a vote? Where do I register it? How do I make it effective? These are among the questions asked by the comparatively few citizens who take any lively interest in to-day's election.

In former elections political organisations and candidates told voters not alone where they could vote, but their number on the register. On this occasion lack of interest, of paper supplies and of transport have left thousands of voters without any precise information. Added to these difficulties is the fact that the long interval since Proportional Representation operated has left many voters in doubt as to why, and how, "preferences" should be marked on their voting papers.

Briefly, then, it is the voter's duty to-day, if his name appears on the register, to find out his polling booth; to ascertain his number on the register (which can be provided by the Presiding Officer in the booth); to examine the list of candidates; to decide which candidate he most favours; to place the figure 1 opposite that name—and then to place the figures 2, 3, 4 and so on against the names of the other candidates to whom he wishes his vote credited in either of two events. These events are (1) that his favourite candidate is elected without the help of his vote, or (2) that he has been eliminated for lack of sufficient support to keep him in the running. If the voter follows these simple instructions the Returning Officer's duty will be to see that the vote is used exactly as the voter desired.

One of your first acts to-day should be to record your vote in the municipal elections.

Disregard politics, and vote for the men you think best fitted for public administration.

Vote early if possible, but at any rate VOTE.

Polling: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

MANY CANDIDATES

While it is desirable that the voter should express as many "preferences" as possible, it is by no means necessary that he should attempt to place a figure against the name of every candidate. The elector who expresses anything up to half a dozen "preferences" will have gone far to say the last word of which he is capable in deciding who shall be members of Dublin Corporation and of other public bodies throughout the country. On this occasion, when there is a plethora of candidates—the majority of whom are unknown to the average city elector—it is unlikely that voters will be able to record more than a limited number of "preferences" on their ballot papers.

If, through one reason or other, any adult is still in doubt as to whether he or she has a vote, and, if so, where such vote should be recorded, all doubts will be removed by paying a visit to the local post office or Gardai station, or the local courthouse, where a copy of the register will be free for reference. If you have changed your place of residence since last November go to the Gardai station in the area in which you formerly lived.

DEFENCE FORCES

Except for a small number of the National Forces who may be home on leave, the Army and other units will not be able to vote in the local elections throughout the country to-day. An Irish Times reporter was officially informed that most of the Army units will not have the time or the opportunity to organise a postal ballot as in the case of elections for the Dail. Every person whose name is on the register as a local government voter is entitled to vote in the elections, including members of the Civic Guard, who are not permitted to vote in elections for the Dail. There has been no prohibition against soldiers voting in the present local elections, the only military order in operation being to the effect that members of the Forces, including the L.D.F., are not permitted to take part in election meetings in uniform.

Nearly 900 officials will control the voting in the 448 polling stations in Dublin. Counting of the votes will begin to-morrow morning, and may last two days, but the names of those elected by first preference should be known to-morrow afternoon.

FINAL MEETINGS

Ireland was on trial in this election. One man had preserved this country and had saved its women and children from the horrors of war, said Mr. T. Mullen, T.D., at an eve of election rally of Fianna Fail candidates at Fairview Corner last night. Eamon de Valera was that man, he said, and they all knew how ten years ago—in 1932 at Geneva—he had had the courage to make his own speech, warning the nations of the world. He asked the voters to consider how an adverse vote against Fianna Fail in this election would be construed elsewhere.

Mr. J. J. Hannon (candidate) said Fianna Fail were making no promises. The promises they made at the last election still held good, and would have been carried out if at the last election Fianna Fail had been given a majority.

When Fianna Fail candidates for Area 3 held a final meeting in O'Connell street last night they were interrupted by shouts of "Up Labour!" and demands for butter, tea, sugar and cigarettes. Police, who were scattered throughout the crowd, at one stage forcibly removed persistent hecklers, to the accompaniment of cat-calls.

SUCCESSOR TO AUCHINLECK

ALEXANDER AS CHIEF

SIGNIFICANT changes in the British Middle East Command — the most noteworthy one being the appointment of General Sir Harold Alexander as Commander-in-Chief, in succession to General Auchinleck—have been announced within twenty-four hours of Mr. Churchill's return from Moscow.

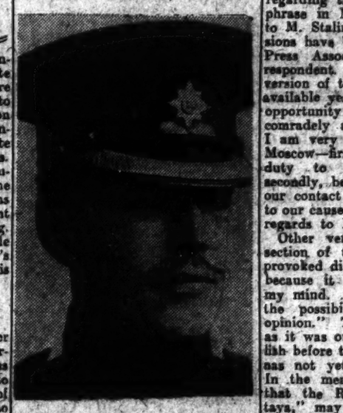
The changes, writes the Press Association Military Correspondent, may presage the breaking of the long lull in Egypt, now that the weather is becoming more favourable for operations. General Alexander's appointment does not necessarily mean that the Prime Minister has lost any of the confidence he expressed in General Auchinleck some weeks ago.

The War Office announces the appointments as follow:—

"General the Honourable Sir H. R. L. G. Alexander, K.C.B., C.S.I., D.S.O., M.C., to be Commander-in-Chief, Middle East, in succession to General Sir C. J. E. Auchinleck, G.C.I.E., C.B., C.S.I., D.S.O., O.B.E.

"Lieutenant-General B. L. Montgomery, C.B., D.S.O., to be Commander, 8th Army, in succession to Lieutenant-General N. M. Ritchie, C.B.E., D.S.O., M.C.

"Major-General H. Lumsden, D.S.O., M.C., to be Commander,



GENERAL SIR H. R. ALEXANDER.

30th Corps, in succession to Lieutenant-General W. H. E. Gott, C.B.E., D.S.O., M.C., killed in action."

WHO'S WHO

General Sir Claude Auchinleck, aged 57, has been Commander-in-Chief, Middle East, since July, 1941. He succeeded General Wavell on his appointment as Commander-in-Chief, India. After the fall of Tobruk last June he assumed command of the 8th Army, in succession to General Ritchie, who returned to London. He has spent most of his soldiering days in India and the Middle East, and was Commander-in-Chief, India, for a time in 1941. Mr. Churchill has described him as "a military figure of the first order."

General Sir Harold Alexander is aged 50 years. He was in command of the British Expeditionary Force during the Dunkirk evacuation, and was Commander-in-Chief, British Forces in Burma. At Dunkirk, he and a naval officer were the last to leave the beach. His bringing the remnants of his Burma force along the only mountain road to safety within the India frontier, just before the monsoons made the road impassable, was regarded as a feat second only to that of Dunkirk. He was one of the originators of the modern battle training schools in Britain.

An Irishman, he has a reputation for the fighting spirit in action. He led a battalion of the Irish Guards during the last war with distinction. He went "over the top" thirty times before being severely wounded, and he won the D.S.O., the M.C., and five mentions in despatches. He commanded a battalion at 24.

General Alexander is a son of the Earl of Caledon, and is married to Lady Margaret Diana Bingham, younger daughter of the fifth Earl of Lucan.

Lieut.-General Bernard L. Montgomery, aged 54, is the son of Bishop Montgomery. In the last war he won the D.S.O., and was six times mentioned in despatches. Since November, 1941, he has been G.O.C. South-East Command, in which he introduced Spartan methods of training.

Major-General R. Lumsden, Commanding the 1st Armoured Division in the Middle East, is a former amateur Grand National rider, and one of Britain's finest horsemen—regarded as one of the "discoveries" of the war. He is aged 44.

Lieut.-General Gott would have been 45 on August 13, the day on which the War Office announced that he was killed when a 'plane in which he was a passenger was shot down. He was the youngest senior commander in the Middle East.

"NEW VENTURE"

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—The question on all sides is, "What does the change mean?" Many immediately jumped to the conclusion that General Auchinleck might be ordered to take some big post in connection with a second front.

A War Department spokesman professed complete surprise at the new move, but one authority said: "All I can think is that Britain has some other venture for General Auchinleck to embark upon. He has done a magnificent job in bringing Marshal Rommel's army to a standstill, and there could not be any other reason for relieving him of his command than to give him something of equal, or even greater, importance to do."—(Reuter.)

CIGARETTES

Dublin tobacconists' expectations that the arrival of recent tobacco imports will mean that cigarettes may shortly become more plentiful are unlikely to bear fruit. Mr. M. J. O'Connor, Secretary of the National Union of Wholesale Tobacco Distributors, pointed out yesterday that the Government's Order of the 2nd March, 1941, curtailing the withdrawal of leaf from bond by the tobacco manufacturers to eighty per cent. has not been relaxed, and until it is there cannot be any hope of extra supplies.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.—Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, Bart., has been granted a decree nisi, with custody of the only child of the marriage, in the Supreme Court to-day.

ALLIES' VIEWS ON MOSCOW TALKS

SECOND FRONT ONLY SUBJECT DISCUSSED—U.S. PAPER SAYS

AT the moment no steps have been taken to recall Parliament to hear a statement by Mr. Churchill on his Moscow conversations. No decision on this point would be taken until the Premier had consulted members of the War Cabinet and political leaders.

It is apparent, however, that both the exchange of views with M. Stalin and the Cairo discussions were almost entirely strategic, and there is little, therefore, that Mr. Churchill could tell the House in open session.

It has been suggested that Mr. Churchill might broadcast to the nation. Mr. Churchill, however, may feel that his first statement on his journey had to be made in the House of Commons.

Among Allied nations a feeling of satisfaction was expressed yesterday at the outcome of the talks. The "Washington Post" goes so far as to say that it would be foolish to suppose that any other subject was discussed except the how and the where of establishing a second front, and calls for an Allied Generalissimo for the Western front.

MR. CHURCHILL'S TELEGRAM

There has been some discussion regarding the interpretation of the phrase in Mr. Churchill's telegram to M. Stalin, of which various versions have been published, says the Press Association Diplomatic Correspondent. The Soviet Monitor's version of the text of the telegram, available yesterday, is:—"I take the opportunity of thanking you for your comradely attitude and hospitality. I am very pleased to have visited Moscow—firstly, because it was my duty to express myself, and, secondly, because I am certain that our contact will contribute usefully to our cause. Please convey my kind regards to M. Molotov."

Other versions of the particular section of the telegram which has provoked discussion read:—"Firstly, because it was my duty to speak my mind. . . ." "Because I had the possibility of expressing my opinion." The text of the message, as it was originally written in English before transmission to M. Stalin, has not yet been made available. In the meantime, it may be said that the Russian word, "vyskasatsya," may be translated either as "to speak out," "to make myself clear," or "to speak my mind." There has, similarly, been some discussion regarding the use of the word "negotiations" in the official communiqué issued in London and Moscow on Monday night. In the Russian text the word is "peregovory." The better translation, though hardly suited to an official document, might be a "talking over"—something which lies half-way between conversations and negotiations.

OUTCOME OF TALKS

The correspondent adds:—"The words, 'highly satisfactory,' which in London to-night were used to describe the talks, is no Whitehall catch-phrase, but an accurate estimation of the results achieved. Neither, I am assured, is there any 'window-dressing' in the reports of the frankness and the friendliness of the talks. It is safe to say now that at no time since Russia entered the war has mutual understanding between the two countries been so complete. Diplomatic and political circles to-night are more than ever satisfied with the outcome of an epoch-making meeting.

"One result has been to concentrate attention, both here and in America, upon Transcaucasia and the Mediterranean, and Mr. Churchill was able to give the Soviet leader an up-to-the-minute appreciation of the situation in an area in which many believe the most vital battles of the war will be fought. It is in the Middle East that direct and operational association between Russia and other Allied forces is most feasible. As the Germans approach Transcaucasia the rôle to be played by the Allied armies assembled in Syria, Palestine, Iran and Iraq comes to the forefront. Away to the north are those Russian reserve armies, trained by Voroshilov himself, awaiting the moment to strike, but held back, even as Stalin held back his reserves last autumn until Moscow was saved by a perfectly-timed thrust."

The Press Association says that General de Gaulle had a long conversation with Mr. Churchill in Cairo. The conversation was a most cordial one, and covered all subjects relative to Franco-British co-operation in the Middle East.

CONDUCT OF WAR

Everywhere the importance of the Moscow meeting to the future conduct of the war was stressed, and Allied comment, says Reuter, may be summed up in the words of the Moscow Pravda:—"It is a significant landmark in the road to the further consolidation of the free peoples."

The Wilhelmstrasse's comment yesterday was that "all reports from the enemy side support the opinion formed some days ago in German political circles, that Mr. Churchill's visit was an act of desperation, which he decided on under pressure of military and political developments in the Soviet Union."

General Smuts, referring yesterday to his talks with Mr. Churchill in Cairo, said: "The talks in Egypt and the Moscow conference are likely to have a far-reaching effect on the conduct of the war." The war situation in all its aspects was fully reviewed when he saw the Premier, and important exchanges of views took place on all major issues, he said.—(Reuter.)

"SECOND FRONT"

The Washington Post writes: "It would be foolish to suppose that any other subject came up for discussion except the how and where of the establishing of a second front, and the meaning of co-ordinating it with the Russians' defensive campaign."

The paper urges the appointment of an Allied Generalissimo for the Western front, suggesting General Marshall, United States Army Chief of Staff, for the post.

A Moscow telegram stated that Izvestia's comment yesterday was: "These decisions at the conference are just what are expected by those wide public circles in Britain and America which demand active operations by British and American armed forces in Europe. The Russian people have no doubt that the results will be of great importance for the common struggle."

Welcoming the Moscow conversations, the Secretariat of the Communist Party of Great Britain stresses that the present war situation renders more urgent the need to open a second front, and states that it will intensify the campaign to rouse public opinion for its speedy establishment.

BRADSHAW LEADING IN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

By J. P. RODNEY.

Harry Bradshaw, the title-holder, is being challenged in the Irish Professional Championship. At the end of the first 36 holes, at Hermitage yesterday, he led the big field, but only by two strokes, second position being held by Eddie Hackett, Lurgan, who is below the holder came Mark McCorkle, of Balmoral, followed by the rapidly improving Christy Kane, of Dalkmore, who was one of the quartette who beat the par of the course (74) by only strokes, the other three being Bradshaw, Moore and Paddy Mahon. Should the seven leaders to-day reproduce their best form it will be an intensely keen struggle, but I doubt if any of the others are capable of giving even only one stroke to the champion over 36 holes in mental play.

There was a period yesterday when Bradshaw looked like leaving his rivals far behind. With a brilliant 72 Hackett deprived him of his lead on the first round by one stroke, but then came a remarkable rise by the Kilkenny man, who reached the turn at 33, or four under thing par—3, 4, 4, 3, 4, 3, 4, 4, 4. He had his 3 at the short 10th—but from that onward he was struggling hard to retain his lead. Off his drive to the 10th (river hole) the ball lay very close. An iron obviously was the club, but even with the spoon he half-topped the ball and had his first 5. His mid-iron to the 12th was short, and to make matters worse he failed to hole from a couple of feet for a 4. He did not give the hole a chance when trying for 3 at the 14th, and, despite a half-topped wooden shot to the 15th, he had a 4, thanks to a lovely chip in front of the wood at the 16th, he played safely for his 5; but at the home hole he missed from a couple of feet for a 4. Behind the champion was Hackett, who was in 38 but the Portmarnock man ranting 4-4s for 74, reeled them off in grand style; his beautiful, long, circling putt at the 17th being one of the features of his extremely steady play on each round.

It was a day of unusually high scoring, but though the course was in ideal condition it played to its full length of 6,246 yards. Play will start to-day at 10 o'clock.

A Racing Dam of Racers

(By Our Racing Correspondent.)

IT is not often that a mare seen running in races is the dam of horses about to race. Last Saturday's Irish Racing Calendar contains the interesting information that Mr. C. Lawless has registered the names of Spot Cash and Hard Cash respectively for a bay gelding by Tolgus (1930) and a bay gelding by the same sire (1940), both out of Brighter Kilcash, who, on Saturday, won the Metropolitan Steeplechase at Baldoyle, and is likely to gain further honours in the near future.

Spot Cash and Hard Cash, no doubt, in time, will be put to jumping, and, if pedigree counts for anything, success is assured. Brighter Kilcash is now nine years old, and is by Brighter London, out of Dreaming Kilcash.

One of the easiest wins in a two years old race this season was that of Mrs. W. J. Byrne's Mrs. Swan Song, who was never out of a canter when winning the Somerton Plate at Baldoyle. Had there not been The Phoenix in the "1,500" at the Phoenix Park she would have won there, and it would have been a case of history repeating itself, for she is a full sister to New Comet, who won the corresponding race for the late Mr. J. H. H. Peard in 1938.

Saturday's race at Baldoyle confirmed the general belief that The Phoenix is an outstanding two years old, and quite likely to emulate the performance of Windsor Slipper in going through two seasons without defeat.

A correspondent who is very much interested in the breeding side of racing, referring to our recent remarks re the pedigrees of The Phoenix, recalls that the fourth dam of Kircubbin, the paternal grand sire of Mr. Myerscough's colt, was Wavelet, a handy little mare which, in the eighties, won many races for Mrs. James McKenna, of The Nurse. He relates that he believes she had a big record of races won, including Royal Plates.

From Wavelet Mr. McKenna bred one foal, Avoca, the third dam of Kircubbin, before he sold her to Messrs. Arnold, for whom she never bred anything worth while. Later she returned to Ireland, carrying Wavlet's Pride, to become the property of a Mr. Craven. In his hands she failed and died.

Wavelet did a lot of racing under very hard conditions—walking to meetings, and got every opportunity. It was said that she was once walked from The Maze to Bellewstown to win a Queen's Plate, and then straight on to the Curragh. Nothing of note sprang up in the family until Kircubbin arrived, and he certainly left his mark.

Entries close to-day with Mr. F. Harold Clarke for six races at the Curragh September meeting, six races at the Phoenix Park Second September meeting, and one race at Powerstown September meeting.

CURRAGH NOTES.

Windsor Slipper, writes our Curragh Correspondent, is quite ready for his farewell display in the Irish St. Leger at the Curragh meeting on September 17. The fact that he does not exercise at any time a searching preparation for even a classic contest, does not mean that he can be allowed to eat the oats of idleness. His trainer knows enough about the business of racing to realise that taking matters easy can be fatal to the best chances.

A considerable number of our horses are under orders for the Limerick Junction meeting to-morrow, where some Maddenstown Lodge successes may be repeated.

Carlist and Camfield are likely to be seen in the field for the Leopardstown Plate on Saturday. The former must be rated at present in the first flight of our two-year-olds after The Phoenix, and Camfield's form is distinctly promising.

SOCCER CLUB'S TROUBLES

The signing of Eire players by Northern Ireland Regional League clubs without consultation with their clubs was discussed a few weeks ago at D'Olier street, but it was the agreed opinion that nothing could be done about it, although it was decided to get into touch with the Northern League to reference to the matter. Now, however, it transpires that the Regional League clubs have their own little differences, that they also have been "pinching" each other's players.

The discovery has been made that, while a "gentleman's agreement" exists between the clubs up North, there is no such thing as a retention—or retained—list, and that, apart from the "gentleman's agreement," the clubs are in exactly the same predicament as those in Eire. The Irish League is not functioning for the time being as it were, it would be different, so far as transfers from one Irish League club to another were concerned.

As a matter of fact, the Northern Ireland Regional League is questioning the right of the Irish League to arrange representative matches during the duration, its contention being that that privilege belongs to the Regional League, as the Irish League has ceased its activities and has no standing.

The Regional League fixture list has been made out to the end of April, and already the prospects for the North's South tournament are being discussed up North. The opinion in official circles is that rushing the new competition through a few weeks in May detracts from its importance, and that it should be thrown out that in the circumstances it would be advisable to extend the season. But would the I.F.A. and the F.A.I. stand for dragging out the season, say, to the end of June simply to oblige the clubs concerned?

Dundalk's supporters are elated over the retention of Barlow, the club's brilliant outside right, but they mourn the loss of Kelly, who has been given his transfer to Belfast Celtic. He had been re-signed by Dundalk, but as he could not make the weekly journey from Belfast the F.A.I. Cup-holders let him go to Celtic.

More than one Northern club had been looking for John Lavery, Dundalk's clever forward; but he remains with Dundalk.

Several of the defunct Waterford Club's players have been fixed up for the season, the latest being O'Regan, outside right, who has gone to Distillery.

The second round matches for the Leinster Senior Cup will occupy the week-end, and should provide at least two excellent games. On Saturday the followers of Bohemians will have an opportunity of passing a verdict on the result of Jimmy Dunne's coaching of the amateurs, who come up against Drumcondra at Dalymount Park. The Cup-holders will make a welcome re-appearance at Milltown on Sunday against Shamrock Rovers, and at Bray the Unknowns meet the winners of this evening's tie between Distillery and Grangegorman.

MUNSTER SCHOOLS' TENNIS CUP FOR GLENSTAL

Glenstal Priory School, Limerick, won the Munster Senior Schools' championship for the third year in succession, when, at Sunday's Well, Cork, yesterday, they defeated Midleton College in the final, winning all six matches. Scores:—

Drowned at Canal.—Death from drowning at the Canal, between Charlemont Bridge and Longford street, on Sunday, was the verdict returned by the Co. Dublin Coroner, Dr. J. M. Brennan, at the inquest yesterday at the Royal Hospital. Evidence of identification was given by Patrick Kelly that his father suffered from fits, and that he was missing from his home on the night and was unsteady on his feet when walking.

Fish and Chips.—The "off" sale of fish and chips after the closing hours laid down in the Early Closing Orders in City of Dublin (Exempted Areas) Order, made by the Minister for Industry and Commerce. The Order applies only to those whose costs or only business is the sale of fish and chips.

SHOT IN MANŒUVRES L.D.F. MAN'S DEATH

How John Ryan, of Blarney, Co. Cork, an official of the Munster and Leinster Bank in Limerick, met his death on L.D.F. manœuvres at Glenstal, Co. Limerick, on June 18, was further investigated, when the inquest was resumed in the County Courthouse, Limerick, yesterday, and an open verdict was returned that death was due to a bullet wound accidentally received.

The Coroner (Dr. J. P. Cleary) said that the medical evidence the last day showed that there was no doubt that the man had been killed by a bullet. The bullet, however, had not been found, and he had been instructed that no proceedings were to be taken. He added, after advising the jury as to their verdict, that what had occurred should be a warning to the military not to use live ammunition in manœuvres.

Lieutenant John O'Callaghan said he was in a military party in charge of an attacking party, whose object was to capture the L.D.F. camp. During the attack he fired one or two shots in the air. There was a rise of ground in front; he heard a shout, "Oh, I'm shot," and going forward among the ferns found Ryan on the ground wounded in the chest.

To the Coroner, the witness said he fired in the air to make the exercise realistic. He had no blank ammunition, but others of the military party had. He could not say that it was a shot from his revolver wounded Ryan.

Capt. C. H. Manders, who organised the manœuvres and acted as umpire, said that before the attack he had all live ammunition collected from the military, and blanks were issued by Lieutenant O'Callaghan. During the shooting he heard a noise which indicated a live bullet, and he saw Lieutenant O'Callaghan in a crouching position, his revolver in his hand. He tried to signal to him to put it away, but was unable; some blanks were fired and a shout went up that a man had been shot. He did not know before the manœuvres started that Lieutenant O'Callaghan had live ammunition.

Asked by Inspector Griffin, who conducted the inquiry, was the Lieutenant authorised to use live ammunition, he said no

GROUSE SHOOTING

Three factors saved the feathers of hundreds of grouse all over Ireland during the past week—the first week of shooting. The first was that there were fewer shooting parties out, because many of those who normally answer the call of the twelfth were unable to get ammunition. The second was because those who did manage to lay their hands on a hundred cartridges used them sparingly and took none of the chances by which birds are often "downed." In the third place bad, blustery conditions made the birds difficult to approach.

The roads to the shoots looked like a picture of August the twelfth, 1899. There was hardly a motor car to be seen, and pony and trap prevailed. Bicycles were pushed into commission on a large scale, and one enthusiast had a special carrier in which to transport his dogs, so that they would not be worn out by the time they had to go to work.

One sportsman told an Irish Times reporter: "During the whole week we met only one other party, and our own party, which in normal times consisted of at least a dozen, was sadly reduced. We hope to get some better shooting when the weather improves and the birds lie better." Duck shooting, our reporter learned, was good, and in most cases the bags were heavy.

MANY SHIPS LOST

LONDON, Tuesday.—The German News Agency reported to-day that, pursuing attacks on Anglo-American convoys, U-boats made a daylight attack on a convoy sailing from Freetown, Sierra Leone, to England and sank five fully-laden transports and a tanker, totalling 33,710 tons. "Owing to the strong defences, the U-boats were at first driven off, but by pressing on they succeeded in again making contact. In single actions other U-boats destroyed another four ships, totalling 26,387 tons in the Atlantic, including an 8,500-ton oil tanker. Only after a long chase did the pursuing U-boats come to grips with the ships in the waters north of Cayenne. One torpedo sufficed to cause the highly-inflammable cargo to explode.

"In the Mediterranean a U-boat attacked an enemy flotilla, out of which the largest ship, a two-funnelled steamer, was sunk and a strongly-armed auxiliary cruiser of 12,000 tons. In the Arctic a U-boat destroyed two tugs and two lighters in tow, which had many hundreds of soldiers on board."—(Reuter.)

A British merchantman was sunk off the northern coast of South America. Survivors have been landed.—(Reuter.)

STOCKHOLM, Tuesday. — The Swedish steamer Liljevach (5,492 tons) has been torpedoed in Swedish territorial waters by a submarine of unknown nationality. It was hit by two torpedoes and sank in 25 secs. Only seven of the crew of forty were saved. The ship was sailing in a convoy of about 20 ships escorted by two Swedish destroyers. The destroyers attacked, but it is not known whether or not the submarine was sunk.—(Reuter.)

"THE JAPANESE KNEW"

SYDNEY, Tuesday.—Mr. Curtin, Australian Premier, said to-day that he was convinced that the Japanese had some knowledge of the Solomons attack. In a political attack on opponents who had criticised the Government for acts of censorship, Mr. Curtin challenged the Opposition to try to defeat the Government if they were not satisfied with its administration. "The censorship criticism can be dealt with in Parliament, which is the proper place. I am more than ever convinced that the Japanese had some knowledge of the Solomons attack." He said: "There are men yelling for offensives when they know they were being undertaken. Newspapers in Australia are afraid that when the war is over the Labour Party will still be in control and the capitalist wolf will be unable to feed on the lambs in the factories and workshops as in the past fifty years." He also attacked Mr. Hughes, Mr. Menzies, Mr. Spender and some members of the War Advisory Council.

The Premier's statement has caused a stir, and it is believed that he is considering an early election.—(Reuter.)

FLOOD DAMAGE IN LEITRIM

Recent rainfalls in North Leitrim have caused extensive flooding, resulting in the destruction of potatoes and other crops, the submerging of pasture lands, and the carrying away in the floods of haycocks. In addition roads have been rendered impassable.

RATION BOOK FINE

Any interference with ration books or coupons will be severely dealt with, said District Justice McCann, in Dublin, when he fined a youth, Christopher Reilly, no fixed address, 40/- for having a ration book illegally in his possession, and for removing coupons from a ration book without authority.

The owner of the book, Thomas Murphy, Duke street, Westland, said it was in a suit case which was stolen from him in July last in Dublin. He had left his case in the Tuc office, and while waiting in a queue for his return he gave the ticket to a man to get it. The man never returned and the case was stolen. Reilly was not that man.

One Match.—At Grasvenor Park, Belfast—Distillery 5 (Killiam J. Irwin, McFarland), Dundalk 4 (Thomas E. Harvey, Baxter).

RATHMINES LEADS PAPER HUNT

The house-to-house waste-paper collection service has been augmented by the organisation of a flying column to deal with offers of fairly large quantities of paper from people who say it must be removed inside twenty-four hours. Up to the present these mobile units consist of one carrier-cyclist, who can take about three stone of paper, and a light horse-van, which can take up to half a ton. Both units were busy yesterday and brought in considerable quantities of paper.

Rathmines was the leading district in the house-to-house collection yesterday, as it was on most days of last week. Though the collectors visit only the same number of houses as the collectors in the other districts, their successful calls usually yield a higher quantity of paper. A new team of collectors in the Kimmage area, however, was well up among the leading teams.

Mr. R. Buchanan, secretary of the new company, said that their collectors were not yet averaging the amount necessary to make the collections economic. However, the public response was improving day by day. He appealed for old directories and other books which were of no value as reading matter.

Most of the people who are giving waste-paper to the collectors are asking for payment to themselves.

CROP ACREAGE

MORE OATS AND WHEAT

Increases ranging from 26 per cent. to 12 per cent. in the acreage under corn crops are shown by preliminary figures just released by the Department of Agriculture.

Compared with last year, the area under wheat has increased by 121,400 acres; 99,200 more acres of oats have been grown; 22,900 more acres of barley, and 1,100 more acres of rye, beans and peas.

According to these preliminary figures, the area under the various corn crops this year totals 1,637,700, against 1,413,200 last year, an increase of 244,500 acres, or 17.3 per cent.

In comparison, however, less root crops have been grown. Potatoes are down by 3,800 acres, turnips by 12,700, mangels by 13,000 and sugar beet and cabbage by 20,000, showing a total reduction of 49,500 acres, or 6.2 per cent.

As forecast in yesterday's Irish Times, the Department reports that, generally speaking, rainfall was not sufficient to meet the full requirements of crops and pastures.

Other facts mentioned are: July's showery weather gives a prospect of more promising returns from the corn crops. "Lodging" has been very slight, but more sunshine now is needed to ripen crops. Winter wheat is ripening evenly and the heads are filling up. The crop seems more promising than at the corresponding period of 1941. A little rust and also some loose "smut" have been noticed on the spring wheat, which, nevertheless, is lengthening out, and the heads are showing fair development. Barley, too, is ripening evenly, and eats seem likely to give an average return. July conditions were of considerable benefit to the flax crops.

Other details were mentioned in the Irish Times yesterday.

MENACE TO SUPPLIES

Mr. Walter Nash, New Zealand Minister to the United States, broadcasting last night, urged that a world reconstruction and development council be set up at once "to map out a positive programme for a world of peace." He warned that, unless the Allies could overcome the menace to Allied supply lines, the chances were that the tremendous production effort which the United States, particularly was putting forth would be largely neutralised. Transportation might well decide the issue of slavery or freedom for mankind for generations to come.—(Reuter.)

Major-General Dawson Olmstead, who recently returned to the United States from London, said that the scales of war were still "mighty heavy on the Axis side. Few of us realise how critical the situation in Britain was and still is."—(The Associated Press.)

LONDON NOTES

(BY OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The London Stock Markets have commenced the week with a revival of the upward movement in values that characterised them during most of last week. Although the Russian war news has some restraining influence on activity, the general war situation is regarded more hopefully.

Dealings expanded appreciably yesterday, as indicated by the bargains recorded, which totalled 4,635—the highest since the publication of the figures began in June. Although the general tendency is firm, the support appears to be mainly for industrials, especially those giving satisfactory yields at current prices, or with good post-war prospects. British Funds remain quietly firm, with some of the "longs" better. Home Rails, too, there has been support for some of the junior issues.

Cotton Textiles have continued to improve, and some of the support for these is reported to come from the North because of the present high level of activity enjoyed by the industry.

IMPERIAL TOBACCO

Elsewhere the feature has been the further improvement in Imperial Tobacco Ord., which last week rose from 64/- to 67/-, and has since advanced anew to 68/6. The firmness of this, and some other Tobacco issues is partly due to the statistics relating to consumption of tobacco consumed in the first quarter of 1942, amounting to over 82½ million lbs., as compared with less than 48½ million lbs. for the first three months of 1941. For the seven years 1934-42 the total consumption reached nearly 236 million lbs., against about 190 millions in 1940-41.

Wheat consumption has been materially affected by the higher taxation imposed in the last Budget, as many people assert has happened, remains to be seen, but "limps" are certainly being put on a diet well supplied with fibre, and demand for 1941-42 will be maintained at 17½ p.c. tax free.

Yield considerations continue to attract buyers of Brewery shares, and higher prices have already been recorded for Woolworth, Ford Motor, International Paint, and other popular issues. The news of Mr. Churchill's visit had a stimulating effect on some of the Iraq Oils and many Kaffirs.

Trading profit of Tamplin and Son's Brewery, Brighton, in the year to 30th April last increased by £32,243 to £453,330, but Taxation took £248,000, or more at £132,067, the net balance was only £2,416 larger at £60,705. The year's dividend on the Ordinary capital is raised by 2 p.c. to 8 p.c., bringing the distribution up to the 1938-39 figure. For several years before that 10 p.c. was regularly paid. The £1 Ordinary shares are quoted at about 30/-, indicating a yield of over 5½ p.c.

To-day's Elections

Local elections are being held throughout the twenty-six counties to-day, for the first time in nearly seven years. Readers of this newspaper are already aware of our attitude towards these elections. In our belief, they are unnecessary, and, as we fear, they are dangerously inclined to upset the admirable spirit of concord which has been engendered in this country since the outbreak of the present world war. Nevertheless, the Constitution of this country is democratic; local authorities are a part of the democratic system, as it stands, and on that account it is the duty of every citizen who is entitled to vote to use his vote, and to use it according to his personal and political conscience. We do not take it upon ourselves to advise any citizen, whether in Dublin or in the provinces, for what party—or more particularly, for what candidate—he ought to vote. We own to certain points of view, the chief of which is that Mr. de Valera, even if he seized a tactical advantage, made a strategic error when he restored the system of "politics" to the election of local authorities. Mr. de Valera himself, as we gather, recognises that he made a mistake on that occasion. So, at least, one is permitted to judge from his recommendation to the electorate, a few weeks ago, to vote for what it regards as the most efficient candidates in every area, irrespective of political affiliations. That was very good advice, and we trust that it will be taken with all seriousness. There are approximately fifteen hundred candidates for about half that number of seats. Many of them are nominees of the Fianna Fail, or Government, Party; many belong to Fine Gael, Mr. Cosgrave's Party; there are numerous Labour candidates, and there is a large candidature of Independents.

Among these candidates, in virtually every constituency, the people are asked to make their choice. How will they recognise the best choice? That is the question which Mr. de Valera, with the best will—and, doubtless, the clearest conscience—in the world, proposes. We fear that the great majority of electors will not bother themselves to make any choice at all. There never has been an election in Ireland—certainly not in Dublin—which has been provocative of so little enthusiasm. Comparatively few citizens are aware even of the names, not to mention the parties, of the candidates in their areas; far fewer are aware of their registry number, or even of the fact that they are entitled to vote; dangerously few have taken the trouble to ascertain the differences between the parties. We are doubtful whether this apathy is a good or a bad thing. It is a bad thing inasmuch as local government is an essential element of democratic government, and we are unhappy to see any diminution of popular concern for popular rights and duties. On the other hand, we believe that this disinclination to vote is largely due to the restoration of "politics" to local affairs; and we are prepared to regard the prevailing apathy as, to some extent, a protest against that iniquitous system. During recent years—particularly since the beginning of the world war—numerous voters have acquired a different point of view. They have realised that the old-fashioned "politics" are not everything—are, in fact, little. They have learned that a reasonable, progressive, decent attitude towards certain particular reforms, or even towards a general plan of reform, is better than adherence to some programme which, even if it seemed ultra-modern a short while ago, is out of date in this year of belligerent grace.

Our readers will be asking by now how we advise them to vote. It is not an easy question, as we have implied, to answer. Mr. de Valera has recommended them, and we recommend them, to vote according to their conscience—that is to say, not according to their party feelings, but according to their knowledge of the candidates. If they believe in a certain Fine Gael candidate, let them give him first preference; if they prefer some Fianna Fail standard-bearer, he is entitled to a vote; a Labour man who is, to the voter's knowledge, worthy of support, has a right to be sent to office. We have recommended our readers once, and we recommend them again, to follow Mr. de Valera's advice, and to pay no respect to parties—to vote for the candidates whom they approve personally—we use the word "approve" in a very strict sense—and to vote for no others. In particular, we commend to their notice the numerous Independent candidates, not only in the city of Dublin, but throughout the country. We suggest that, before setting out to vote this morning, they should ascertain the entire policies for which these Independent candidates, as well as the better-publicised candidates of the political parties, are standing, that they should scrutinise those policies, and that they should give those Independents the benefit of the doubt if doubt at any time should arise. Votes for these Independents are the more important, not only because the Independents stand for practical things as against vague political ideals, but also because a return of Independents in strength may help to persuade a party which restored the "political" element to local elections that it made a bad and undemocratic mistake.

The Smithy Door

A Belfast newspaper reports that the blacksmith's forge is becoming both a more flourishing and a more popular place since the withdrawal of the "basic" petrol ration has driven motor cars off the road. The children coming home from school pear, in the approved manner, through the open door, and the smith—a mighty man is he—has the largest gallery that he has known since the spreading chestnut tree was first cut down to make room for the petrol pump. Horses that wish to be well-shod have to wait in a lengthy queue for their turn, and look the whole world—or as much of it as has a little time to waste—in the face while the smith performs his professional duties. A country correspondent reports, however, that inside Eire the blacksmith is not in so happy a position. He may be the man of the moment now that, for many people, the horseshoe has taken the place of the bicycle tyre; but, unfortunately, he, too, is at the mercy of war conditions. One smith, in County Donegal, said that "there was not a pound of iron in the whole county." He had plenty of work to do, but no material with which to do it; and his customers, if they could not be satisfied from the small stock of shoes hanging on his wall, could not be satisfied at all. The fire itself, the very heart of the smithy, is palpitating. In many areas, since coal and coke are unobtainable, turf charcoal is being used as fuel. Turf is unsatisfactory, as the draught of the bellows is too strong, and merely reduces the turf to ashes in a very short time. So far, there has been no suggestion of a black market in horseshoes, or of a campaign for the collection of those which hang as lucky charms over the doors of half the country, so that, perhaps, the position is not yet serious. Let us hope that, as we have, lost our cars for want of petrol, and are in a fair way to lose our bicycles for want of tyres, we shall not also lose our horses for want of shoes.

OPERA AT OLYMPIA

The Dublin Operatic Society's season of grand opera, due to open in Olympia Theatre on September 13th, promises to be one of the most attractive and successful in the fourteen years' existence of the Society. Particularly notable will be the appearance of Joan Hammond, the distinguished Australian soprano, in Mozart's "Magic Flute" and Puccini's "Madam Butterfly." She will have as leading tenor in the Mozart work Mr. Frank Titterton, of Waterford singer, and in the Puccini opera Mr. Francis Russell, who will be welcomed on his reappearance in Dublin. The other operas to be presented are "Traviata" (Verdi) and "Faust" (Gounod).

The operas are to be produced by Mr. Charles Moore the Covent Garden producer, who will have the assistance of his wife, herself an experienced operatic star. The orchestra will include the full strength of the radio orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Arthur Hammond, and the chorus will number over seventy voices.

KILLING OF THE DEER

Arrangements for the slaughter of the greater number of the eight hundred deer in Phoenix Park are almost completed, and it will probably take place either to-day or to-morrow. Each animal killed will provide an average of forty pounds of venison, and the many hundreds of pounds which will result from the "kill" are to be exported, as there is little demand in this country for venison.

The rounding-up and the slaughter of the deer with humane killers has been placed in the hands of a Dublin contractor, who will freeze the venison for export. The President, by right of office, must receive a certain proportion of the venison, and a quota also will be distributed among officials of the Board of Works and the Department of Finance.

Should the deer not die by shooting at the hands of experts? Is a question which has reached the Irish Times from many animal-lovers throughout the country, who state that the proposed plan of pursuing upon the deer on horseback into corralls, and netting them, is bound to cause unnecessary suffering to the nervous animals.

Shooting is the method usually employed to thin-out birds, and objectors to the Board of Works' scheme say that experts can be found to do it.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles Na gCopaleen

AS we go to press comes the news that eighteen more books have been banned, including Guggenschemer's "Laws of Happy Marriage." Now I will not stand for it do you hear me, I will not have it. I will not permit anonymous and self-appointed smut-diviners to tell me what to read or not read. I will not put up with this grossest of intellectual tyrannies. Is it any wonder that we are the laughing-stock of the civilised world? Shaw banned; Spengler banned, practically all mankind's heritage of grace and learning and kindliness and imagination denied us by the whim of some back-lane illiterate, who asks us to accept his second-hand, shrivelled brainees as the arbiter of what is wrong and right in the sphere of the intellect. I will not stand for it do you hear me. Why do I no longer write novels? Why do I deny the world the enlightenments, the inspiration, the beauty that come to us when the timeless insight of genius is applied to all the great riddles of human destiny? Because I will not submit my work to the foul scrutiny of these ungrown and ungrowable sub-boys, I simply will not stand for it do you hear me.

I met one of them some days ago, happen to know very well that the nasty wort underlines words and phrases in the books of his betters and sends them in to the censors. Had the brazen hardihood to ask me to be godfather to a youngster he had just been blessed with.

"I will not stand for it, do you hear me," I answered.

We Must See About This

Recent pronouncements in high places on the nature of trade and money is causing plenty of that odd thing known as "grave concern" among the men who do be in the streets.

A good price for cattle, is it? Bedad you'll get a good price all right, there was a buyer from Liverpool above at the market last week buyin' all round him, you couldn't give him enough. But what was he leavin' behind him? Money, is it? Sure not at all man. That's only a scrap of paper.

Paper?

For God's sake listen to me, man, and answer me this. We'll say you're on a desery island and you send me gold or something that you find there, send it on be post. And all the time, remember, you haven't had a feed for a week. Right. What do I do? I come the same game as your men are playing on us. I send you a wad of notes.

Well?

Well yourself! Can you eat the notes?

No.

Can you fry them in land and have a damn fine feed for yourself?

No.

Can you do anything with them at all?

No.

What did I tell you? Begob now the people of this unfortunate country's goin' to wake up some fine day, you'll see a terrible revolution in this country yet. Damn the cow I'd let out of the country. I'd send notes like the other crowd are doin'. Why can't we send notes for the notes they send us? Eh?

A Few Questions

No, this isn't a cliché quiz but tell me what would you call the little ghosteen that does be knocking in your head the morning after?

A portergeist.

When Nijinsky danced in "The Firebird," what did he take care to dance on?

His asbestoes.

What is inscribed on a certain shop sign in Great Clarence street, Dublin?

"Morthary Habits and Press Agents."

In what part do people take jokes against themselves?

Good.

NATIVE ROOT SEEDS

FUTURE SUPPLIES

Owners of Eire's four million cattle, who may have been worried about the feeding of their stock in the winter as the emergency, should be reassured by a report given to an Irish Times reporter yesterday.

It concerned the progress of the scheme for providing a native supply of mangel seed, and thus ensuring the continuance of a crop, of which about 14 million tons is grown here in normal years, which plays a very important part in the winter feeding of cattle, and which, in other years, had been grown almost entirely from seed imported from countries that are no longer open to Eire. Those in charge of the scheme now say that, granted reasonably good harvest conditions, adequate supply of mangel seed for next year's crop is assured.

To meet the situation caused by the cessation of foreign supplies, the leading Irish seed companies, with Government approval, formed, some months ago, the Associated Seed Growers, Ltd., charged with the intention of assuring supplies of root seeds. This company sent an organiser out into good mangel-growing districts to interest farmers in the saving of seed. Verbal instruction was given, and hundreds of circulars were distributed. Contracts were then given to farmers for the growing of hundreds of acres of mangels for seed purposes, and it is the produce of these contracts which will assure supplies of seed for future crops.

One member of the company told the reporter that, while there could not be any certainty until the harvest was over, there should, unless weather conditions became very bad, be an adequate supply for next season's needs. "I should like," he said, "to pay a very strong tribute to the Sugar Company for the help they gave us, directly and indirectly, in this matter. In the last two years, when they took up intensively the job of teaching farmers to save sugar-beet seed, they did a tremendous amount of work, and, as saving mangel seed has much in common with saving sugar-beet seed, we were able to reap the benefit of their work."

The results of the Sugar Company's seed-growing experiments have also been remarkably successful, and all next year's crop will be grown from home-produced seed. It was recently stated that the Irish yield had been as good as anywhere in Europe, and not much inferior to that anywhere in the world. The company is continuing its experimenting with breeding and cross-breeding, and is going ahead with the production of elite strains in an endeavour to secure the highest possible yields in this industry.

THE RASHER PROBLEM

The bacon position is likely to improve next month, a wholesaler said yesterday. At the moment, however, business is at a standstill, and there has been some disemployment.

One rasher a head and bacon at breakfast only are some of the ways in which Dublin hotels are instituting a private rationing scheme since the shortage of bacon became acute. The week-ends are the most difficult times to procure supplies, and a prominent city restaurant has cut down consumption on Saturdays and Sundays. So far, the hotels have not had to refuse demands for bacon at breakfast, but guests or casual diners, asking for liver and bacon, or eggs and bacon as the afternoon or evening, are given ham instead, and, in another establishment, bacon is served at all meals, though in reduced quantities.

DUN LAOGHAIRE FIRE

Expeditous work by Dun Laoghaire Fire Brigade last night put out a fire which occurred at No. 7, Upton, Albert road, Dun Laoghaire. Fittings in the kitchen, pantry and in outhouse were destroyed. A high wind rendered difficult the work of the brigade.

BLACKBERRIES

It will soon be blackberry time. There are indications of a bumper crop this year, but, so far, the jam manufacturers have not fixed the price of the fruit. Householders will find it difficult to make the jam, as only very limited extra supplies of sugar are available for the purpose. Large families, however, are solving this problem by a common sacrifice. Each member of the household uses only a half-pound of his or her weekly ration, and the quarters saved are put aside against the jam-making requirements of blackberry time.

SOLOMONS BATTLE

FAVOURS ALLIES

United States marines, "well-established" ashore, are striving for a definite decision in the battle of the Solomon Islands, says Reuter. Though it has been suggested in Washington that they have occupied some of the islands, there is still no official confirmation of this report. The Allied offensive, however, continues to develop favourably, according to the latest despatches from the Pacific area.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday. — A special correspondent of the Melbourne Herald reported from a South Pacific port to-day that big sea battles were still "brewing" in the bitterly-contested waters of the Solomons, and might prove the turning-point in the fight for the barrier of bases north of Australia. He said that latest reports of the fighting there emphasised the cardinal truth underlying the whole operation, that since the Americans had apparently established satisfactory footholds in the islands, victory must go eventually to the side controlling the sea lanes.—(Associated Press.)

BRAZILIAN SHIPS SUNK

THREAT OF REPRISALS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Tuesday.—Angry crowds to-day attacked Axis buildings and offices in the capital and other important towns of Brazil following the sinking of five Brazilian ships. Violent demonstrations have been held in the streets, with orators branding the sinkings as a "Nazi ignominy" and demanding retaliation. The Press is making vehement demands for the Government to take up a "decisive attitude" towards the aggressors.

The Chief of Police was loudly cheered when he spoke to a crowd. "It is unnecessary to take violent action," he told them. "The Government will know how to take the necessary firm and decisive measures." An enormous crowd, carrying national flags, marched through the main streets demanding that the shops be closed as a sign of protest.—Reuter.)

President Vargas said that Axis nationals in Brazil and all suspect elements will be "separated from the community" and given vigorous treatment.—(Reuter.)

Brazilian Merchant Marine authorities have ordered all ships now at sea to put into the nearest port, and no more ships are allowed to leave Rio de Janeiro. A number of people who expressed their pleasure at the sinkings have been arrested by the police to prevent their being lynched by the crowds.—(Reuter.)

President Vargas added that Axis ships would be seized by Brazil to compensate for the sinkings, and Axis-owned property in the country would also be held responsible for compensation.—(Reuter.)

Dr. Aranha, Brazilian Foreign Minister, assured a big crowd that "the Government will take all the necessary steps to organise the country in view of the brutality of the attacks. I cannot say when the aggressors will bite the dust of defeat, but they will live to repent their actions."—(Reuter.)

A PARNELL MUSEUM

Avondale House, Co. Wicklow, the place at which Charles Stewart Parnell spent the last years of his life, the seat of the Parnell family, and now a property of the Forestry Division, Department of Lands, will be turned, in part, into a Parnell museum. It is hoped that people who have relics of the "Leader" will co-operate with the Minister for Lands in setting up the museum by presenting or lending objects associated with the life of Parnell.

The principal room in Avondale House will be reserved for a display of such donations. It is expected that many of the objects lent to the National Museum on the occasion of the Parnell Commemoration last year will find their way to the new museum.

Avondale House has been used as a forestry training centre since 1904, with a break for 20 years from 1915. It was reconditioned in 1935, before being re-opened. It houses about twenty students of forestry.

KILKENNY COLLEGE.
FOUNDED 1538.
The school provides a first class secondary education on modern lines. If this is judged by examination results the following records of the Intermediate Certificate Examination for the last ten years will prove interesting. 163 boys were entered. Of these, 123 passed with Honours, 20 passed without Honours, and 20 failed. All boys entered for Dublin University passed.
Careful coaching in games, which include Rugby Football, Cricket, Hockey and Lawn Tennis. The School has won the Junior School Hockey Cup on seven occasions and the Senior Cup once. All boys are taught swimming under careful supervision.
There is a Preparatory Department for girls (day pupils only) and boys up to the age of twelve years.
The School has a splendid health record, and there is a trained nurse on the resident staff. Fresh vegetables are regularly supplied from the school gardens. Physical drill is practised throughout the school year.
Out-of-school activities are well catered for and include a strong troop of Scouts.
Prospectus containing full particulars on application to the Headmaster, C. S. SHANNON, M.A., Headmaster.
